HOUSE BILL 5335

AN ACT CONCERNING THE RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF LANDLORDS AND TENANTS REGARDING THE TREATMENT OF BED BUG INFESTATIONS

Distinguished Chairs and Members of the Housing Committee:

The Consumer Specialty Products Association¹ (CSPA) appreciates this opportunity to submit testimony regarding House Bill 5335 – An act concerning the rights and responsibilities of landlords and tenants regarding the treatment of bed bug infestations.

CSPA members are committed to manufacturing and marketing safe, innovative and sustainable products that provide essential benefits to consumers while protecting human health and the environment. CSPA member products improve the quality of human life and are necessary to protect the public health against dangerous diseases, infestation and unsanitary conditions. CSPA members are committed to providing products that are thoroughly evaluated for human and environmental safety and go through rigorous safety-based assessments before they are brought to market. CSPA members are also committed to clear and meaningful labeling on consumer products, i.e., easily understood information to ensure safe and effective use and disposal. CSPA has a product stewardship program called Product Care® that assists members in meeting these commitments. In addition, CSPA members routinely apply green chemistry and green engineering principles in their operations and have been honored with awards for their efforts. CSPA and the manufacturers of consumer pesticides care deeply about the health and safety of consumers and the environment. As part of the registration process, products are tested extensively, to ensure that all of our pesticide products, when used according to label instructions, do not harm the consumer or the environment and are effective. Additionally, labeling directions provide consumers with extensive and clear information on the appropriate rates, volumes, and application methods for each registered product.

CSPA supports legislation requiring the prompt treatment of bed bug infestations. Over the past several years, bed bugs have become an increasing problem; especially in urban areas throughout the country and CSPA members are committed to providing consumers with safe, effective and low cost options for the treatment of bed bug. CSPA would like to thank the committee members for including consumer product treatment methods in House Bill 5335. This important addition means that landlords are able to take advantage of the effective, inexpensive and readily available treatment options that are provided by consumer products. For consumers and landlords who often operate on tighter budgets, allowing this affordable option is especially necessary.

CSPA thanks the committee for allowing for the use of consumer products that have be shown to fight bed bug infestations and are available at a lower cost to the consumer. Our member companies provide a series of treatment methods that help fight bed bug infestations and we encourage you to continue to allow those less expensive options to be available. Allowing first for the use of consumer products as stated in this legislation helps landlords to simply and effectively treat an infestation of bedbugs. CSPA supports House Bill 5335 and encourages the committee to vote favorably for it in its current form.
